Co. goes for Ford, Price to continue tradition

The rest of the state and nation may have gone for Jimmy Carter Tuesday, but for Randall County voters the Presidential balloting proved to be not even a close race.

Traditionally Republican Randall County went solidly for President Ford and running-mate Bob Dole.

The county also gave the edge to former Congressman Bob Price, who lost in his effort to unseat Rep. Jack Hightower in the 13th Congressional District.

Uncharacteristically, county voters allowed Democratic incumbent U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen an edge over Republican challenger Alan Steelman.

Four Canyon area precincts, though, showed a decided Democratic tendency as the races for President and Vice President, Congressman, and U.S. Senator were far closer in those precincts.

Hightower carried two of the four Canyon precincts and ran close behind Price, who was Congressman from this district for eight years, in the other two.

The Carter-Mondale ticket failed to carry any Randall County precincts.

Just over 80 per cent of the voters registered in Randall County went to the polls under clear skies Tuesday for the general election.

Computerized results issued shortly after midnight showed that 26,944 persons voted in the election, a slight slip in percentages from the 83 per cent who cast ballots in the 1972 general election. A total of 33,274 persons had registered to vote in the county.

Election results for the county, the first in the state to go to computerized voting several years ago, were slowed Tuesday night at West Texas State University's computer center due to a large number of write-in ballots cast primarily in the race for associate justice of the state Supreme Court.

Even with the write-in effort, though, aimed at dislodging the built-in lead given Don Yarbrough, a candidate for the court of allegedly questionable integrity, Yarbrough managed to carry the county.

As many as 30 per cent of the total number of voters may have cast straight Republican Party ballots in the Tuesday election.

In the balloting for President and Vice President, the Carter-Mondale ticket gathered only 33.7 per cent of the Randall County vote with 9,074 votes, while the Ford-Dole ticket got 63.5 per cent with 17,115 votes.

Bentsen garnered only a narrow victory in the county with 13,012 votes for 48.29 per cent of the vote while Steelman took 47.38 per cent with 12,766 votes.

The Hightower-Price race was also close in the county with the incumbent garnering 12,947 votes for 48.05 per cent and Price gathering 13,345 votes for 49.53 per cent.

Yarbrough, who faces 19 civil suits and possible disbarment, took 37.98 per cent of the vote even though unchallenged on the ballot in his bid for the state supreme court seat. He received 10,234 votes, well over the 5,660 write-ins cast for Sam Houston and the 983 write-ins cast for Tom Loran.

In district-wide balloting, Hightower polled enough votes to return to Washington as representative of the 13th Congressional District.

Bentsen also won re-election to the Senate.

Yarbrough apparently won his

Audrey Bruse wins re-election; Simpson wins easily over Holt

Randall County Tax Collector Audrey Bruse and State Rep. Bob Simpson won re-election to their seats Tuesday, both by wide margins.

Mrs. Bruse, who has served two terms in the county office, outlasted opponent Bob Burks, an Amarillo real estate dealer, by a two-to-one margin for the victory.

Simpson also polled a two-to-one margin over challenger Robert G. Holt, an Amarillo investor.

Simpson will return to the state legislature in January for his second two-year term.

The incumbent tax assessor-collector, a Republican, garnered 63.18 per cent of the vote in the county while Burks drew 32.88 per cent. Mrs. Bruse received 17,023 votes while Burks received 8,860.

Simpson tallied 59.42 per cent of the vote with 16,010 votes while Holt received 9,200 votes for 34.14 per cent.

In Canyon area precincts, Mrs. Bruse carried each area as did Simpson.

A jubilant Mrs. Bruse told The News last Tuesday she appreciates the confidence shown by the voters in her operation of the tax office.

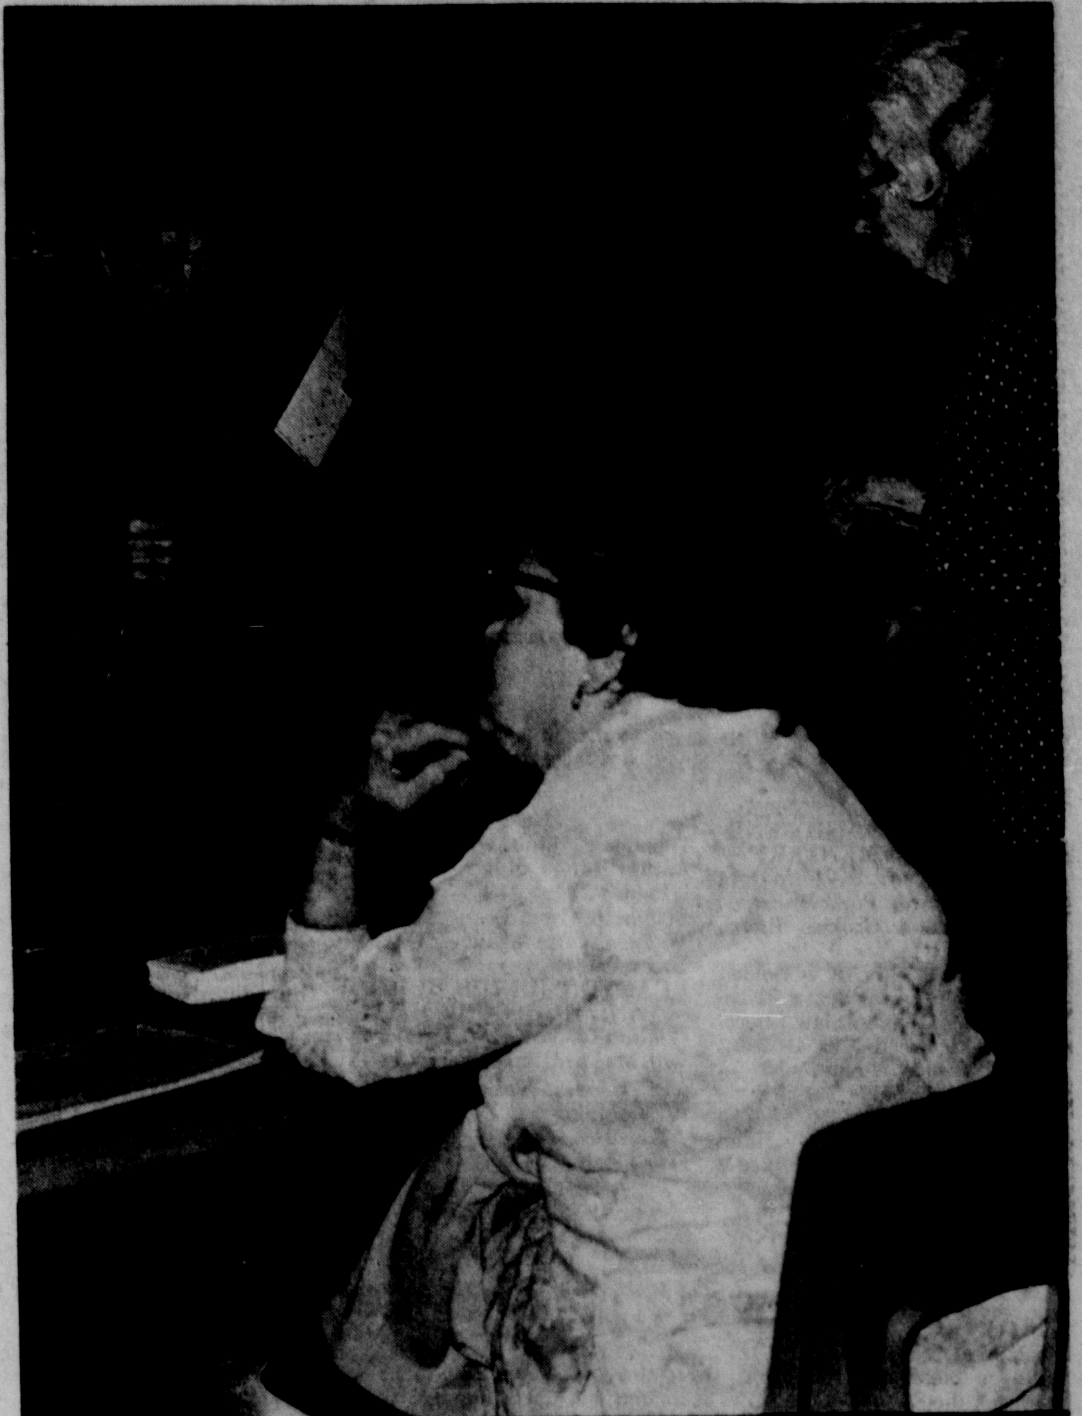

Her performance during two terms was the center of the campaign attack led by Burks, who contended she was spending too much to collect taxes.

"This showed they put good government ahead of party labels, which I think they should do," Mrs. Bruse said.

"I'm just looking forward to working hard for another four years," she said. "The future looks bright for Randall County. It's one of the fastest growing in the state."

Mrs. Bruse said she would not attribute her victory to a coat-tail effect given the overwhelming

Plan would aid CISD; values said okay

Canyon School District's Dr. Sam Thompson used his calculator to turn fear into optimism Tuesday after reviewing tax valuation figures and their possible impact on local taxpayers.

The figures were dispensed Monday in a special conference for school officials in Austin and Thompson brought back to Canyon a load of information about the district.

Projecting the resolution of what are now only "ifs" on the legislative horizon, Thompson indicated Tuesday he is optimistic the Canyon district's taxpayers may be just as well off as they are now and, possibly, even better in terms of the funds they must fork over to pay for their share of the education of their children.

He had expressed open fears a week ago that the tax valuation figures compiled by a special study group under the Governor's office would leave Canyon taxpayers vulnerable to drastic tax increases in the future to provide the local district's share of school funding.

But, after applying the pencil to the figures Tuesday, he and Business Manager Ronnie Wood said the net result of the current state-wide turmoil in financing elementary and secondary education could be a tax saving for local taxpayers.

That depends, though, on how the legislature approaches school financing next spring when the new session begins.

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe proposed Monday—and Thompson was there to hear him—a school financing package which would place more of the financial burden for local district expenses on the state.

Thompson said he is not aware of any other proposal with the research and backing which the governor's proposal has.

Currently, the state provides partial funding for local district's programs. Local taxpayers are taxed to make up the difference between the state funding and the funding required to operate school programs.

Under the governor's proposal, Thompson said, the state would pick up a much larger chunk of the local district financing, leaving less to be paid by local taxpayers.

Under current legislation, for example, the district's residents pay about $421,000 to finance what the state terms a basic educational program. The current law, passed two years ago for a two-year period, increased Canyon's local tax load from a level of just over $100,000 to the $421,000, and that increase resulted in tax hikes for local taxpayers.

Under the governor's proposal, Thompson said, it appears the local tax load would be lightened as the state took responsibility for increased fund-ding of local programs.

The funds which would be required from local sources, he said, would be about $257,300 under the governor's program.

"So we would get a cut if the governor's plan is adopted," he said.

Thompson said he favors the governor's proposal because "it is better for our local people."

The state and local shares of educational financing are figured under formulas which place heavy weight on the tax valuations in the local districts.

Should future proposals include similar formulas, the tax valuation figures released Monday concerning the Canyon district may have little impact on the final taxes local residents pay for education, Thompson in-

Mayfield resignation request may spur effort to poll alumni

A resolution seeking the immediate resignation of West Texas State University Athletic Director Gene Mayfield is not dead but before it is revived for consideration by the board of the WTSU Alumni Association an attempt will probably be made to poll association members for their feelings on the matter, the News was told Tuesday.

Jim Edd Wines, new executive director of the alumni group, said the resolution, presented by board member Orrel Vise last Saturday, was only postponed for consideration and the consideration may or may not come at later board meetings.

He said he is tentatively planning a straw poll to be sent to alumni association members — now numbering about 20,000 — later this month or during December.

The poll would provide feedback from the group's membership, he said.

Vise's motion stirred emotional debate Saturday during the association's annual meeting, which coincided with WTSU homecoming activities here.

Vise said Monday he will let the motion stand "on its own merits" and will not push in future meetings for its adoption.

He said his intention in presenting the motion was not to deal with the personality or personal integrity of Mayfield.

There is a time in any community, he said, when institutions which serve the community become more important than the individuals associated with the institution.

The alumni group, after hearing heated debate about Vise's motion, which called for the immediate resignation of Mayfield, voted on a pre-emptive motion that the resolution be tabled.

That motion passed when the voters were asked to stand to show their preference.

Another motion, though, one supporting the WTSU athletic

City helping fight request

Bell rate increase would hit locals with 56% hike

If Southwestern Bell gets the rate hikes it is asking for, the cost to the consumer here for a residential phone will increase 56 per cent.

But Canyon is hoping the rate increases will not be granted by the Texas Utilities Commission. The commission, newly created, is hearing its first case, a request for about $294.3 million increase for Southwestern Bell.

The city has joined 89 other cities in the Texas Municipal League to fight the request.

At present, Canyon's only involvement in the hearings now going on in Austin is a financial contribution of $249.99, an assessment arrived at by taxing the city three cents per person, based on the 1970 census.

However, city manager Glen Metcalf said that if the hearings drag on, the city could be asked to put up more money. The city government strongly supports the intervention by TML in the rate case, he said.

Canyon city commissioner J. Pat Stephens is a member of the TML utilities committee, formed late this summer to represent the cities' interests in utilities actions.

Stephens said Monday night, however, that he knew little about the telephone case beyond what he read in the newspapers. His committee will meet Nov. 13 in Austin to report to the TML convention.

In addition to raising residential telephone rates, business telephone service will also increase 56 per cent for the base rate and 18 per cent for extension phones.

City financial agent Mrs. Marguerite Strain reported that the city phone bill is usually just under $1,000 per month. October charges were $907.18, which probably included less than $100 in long distance charges, she said.

Brother, sister reunion first for both after 34 years apart

When Walter Brunner arrives in Canyon tonight from California with his wife and daughter, he will see his sister for the first time in 34 years.

Mrs. Ruth Yarbrough, of 805 6th Ave., has spent the entire time searching for some trace of her brother, with whom she lost contact when he returned to their native home of Switzerland in 1942.

Brunner called his sister two weeks ago after a chance meeting with a friend of a friend that disclosed her whereabouts.

"He planned to come here in June," she said, "but he called night before last and said he couldn't wait until June, he was coming now."

Brunner is her only living blood relative, she said, although her sisters-in-law and her mother-in-law live here. Brunner lives near Bakersfield, Calif. They were raised on a ranch near Ferndale, Calif.

Mrs. Yarbrough said she had searched for years for her brother. Mrs. E. T. Cummings had helped her write letters and hunt for him.

"My sisters-in-law would say 'why don't you give up' after every letter came back with nothing, because I would get so upset," she said.

Meanwhile, her brother had heard she had been killed in an auto accident in Oklahoma. He had written the state for a death certificate but, of course, there was none.

He had given up looking for her when the meeting with the friend gave him her address.

He phoned her, Mrs. Yarbrough said, "and we just bawled."

She said she was much too excited to think of anything but the coming visit. She has arranged to take off some time from her job on the custodial staff of West Texas State University to spend with her brother and his family.

"I don't even know what he looks like or anything and he won't know me," she said.

Mrs. Yarbrough said he had

Classroom crunch leads to happy team solution

Mrs. Marguerite Green holds a spelling lesson for part of her huge sixth grade class as other youngsters work in groups.

An acute shortage of classroom space at Gene Howe Elementary School led to the district's first experiment in team teaching this year.

"We didn't set out to evaluate team teaching," said Luther Lawless, principal at Gene Howe. "We just didn't have any more classrooms."

The solution has been a combined class of 49 sixth graders with two teachers.

"It is a very successful team teaching situation," Lawless said.

Marguerite Green and Suzella Parsons had cooperated in their teaching for six years, with Mrs. Green teaching all the math and social studies and Mrs. Parsons teaching English and science.

At first, when the two classes moved into the large double room, which had been a physical education room and then a reading diagnostic lab, they had a partition between the two classes to maintain self-contained classrooms.

But the teachers soon had the partition taken down because it in itself was causing a distraction.

Now, Mrs. Green is the lead teacher in math and social studies and Mrs. Parsons gives individual coaching to youngsters who need help.

"This is the biggest advantage," Mrs. Parsons said. "They have instant personal attention."

The team approach allows youngsters good in a subject to advance rapidly because they don't have to wait for the teacher to explain again to those having difficulties, they said.

And, likewise, students with trouble get help quickly.

Mrs. Parsons is the lead teacher for English and science and both teachers instruct reading, spelling and art.

"I enjoy helping with math and social studies," Mrs. Parsons said. "We do have to stay right up with what they are doing."

Both teachers agreed they have to work harder in their combined room than they would have done in a self-contained room.

"It's hard work," Mrs. Green said. "There's never a second off."

There have been no disciplinary problems in the large classroom, they say. There have actually been less than they would have expected out of a single classroom.

There are several explanations, they say.

With a teacher always available to stay with the class when another must leave, the students maintain a calm atmosphere that discourages bad behavior.

"A 12-year-old is mature enough to know you can't get in a room like this and everybody do your own thing," Mrs. Parsons said.

Both students and parents have supported the arrangement, a factor they call vital.

"The parents' support has been a major factor in the success," Mrs. Green said.

Only one parent voiced reservations about the double classroom, Mrs. Parsons said.

"Since I had taught three of her other children, she trusted me enough to try it. I haven't heard any more from her."

A second factor that is vital is the compatibility of the teachers and tolerance for differences, they said.

Because they have worked closely together anyway, they were sure they could make a go of team teaching. But the choice of a teammate is critical. Neither would be willing to team teach again unless they were sure of their partner, they said.

"You must respect how the lead teacher wants to teach," Mrs. Parsons said. "I can't see that it hampers an individual way of teaching."

It is helpful that they both look at youngsters in the same way, they agreed.

One of the advantages is the pooling of supplies from both rooms. This means, for example, that they have 16 headsets instead of eight to use.

They also find they can do more in art and similar projects with the combined class.

"One teacher has time to get it ready (art project) and while they're doing it, the other can get the clean-up organized," they explained.

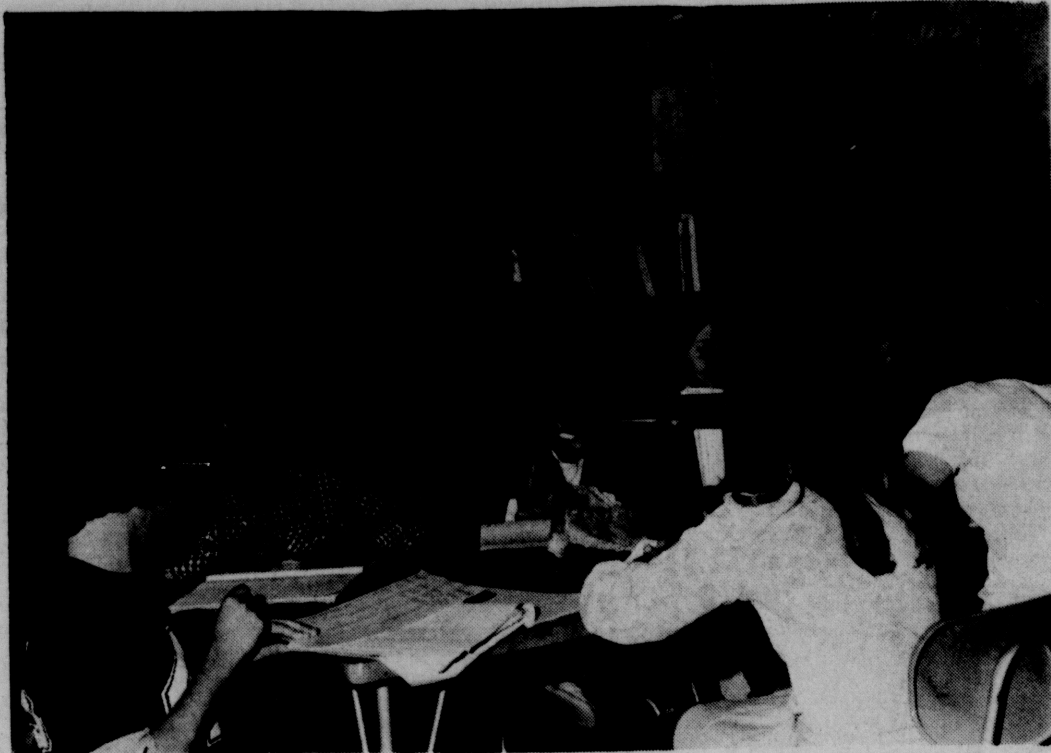

Subjects that invite discussion take longer to complete because of the larger number of students, the teachers said. This is one of the few problems they have with the combined class.

The future prospects for team teaching at Gene Howe are probably limited. The school is not constructed to accommodate combined classes, Lawless points out. And the room is needed for other purposes, once the enrollment at Gene Howe drops after the elementary school under construction now is completed.

But Lawless said if the teachers wanted to continue, he is willing to consider it.

For spelling, the double class is split into small groups for individual study. Here Michael Longhofer, Ernie Mendez, Ronda Golden, Julie Conlan, Sharon Henwood, Denise Morgan and Leslie Martindale work on their spelling kits.

Local governments get tax

Randall County and the City of Canyon took in more than $4,000 total as their share of the state mixed drink tax for the July-September quarter.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's office said Randall County received $4,643 from mixed drink sales while the City of Canyon received $152.

The state remits 15 per cent of the total tax collected to each governmental body and the remainder of the tax goes into the state's general fund. Total collection for the quarter in Texas was $10.7 million.

4-H news: New time for meeting

Randall 4-H Club changed their meeting time to the second Thursday monthly at a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Allen Winters.

The club's regular monthly meeting will be held in the Farm Bureau Building at 7:30 p.m.

Plans were also discussed for participation in a beef feeders garage sale to be held Dec. 4 on Paramount Street in Amarillo. Funds raised will be used for dressings for the beef feeders and all families with a beef feeder need to supply several items for the garage sale.

Resaleable items for the garage sale may be brought to the office of Paul Sammons, assistant county extension agent, or will be picked up by calling Pat Osborn at 655-2056.

The club then dismissed to the Western Bowl for several lines of bowling where Carla Woolsey was the winner. They returned to the Winters' home for a supper of sloppy joe hamburgers, potato chips and punch completed with a Mickey Mouse cake which had been baked and decorated by Irene Grabber.

Several awards were presented members who weren't at the county 4-H banquet including Irene Grabber who received the rookie record award; and Irene Grabber, Tom Grabber, Carla Woolsey and Becky Freeman who received the nutrition awards.

Attending the meeting were adult leaders: Paul Sammons, Mary Winters, Della Hales and Pat Osborn and guests: Quint Bagsby and Leslie and Kelly Gordon.

4-H club members present included Theresa Tueck, Tammy Tueck, Becky Freeman, Irene Grabber, Tom Grabber, Carla Woolsey, Larry Hates, Debbie Hales, Joe Lamm, David Winters, and Guy Osborn.

Baptists set revival with guest evangelist

First Baptist Church of Canyon begins a four-day fall revival with opening services Sunday, Nov. 7, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Max L. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Brownwood, will be the visiting evangelist and has themed his message from II Chronicles 7:14 titled "If My People..."

A graduate of Kilgore High School, Mr. Brown also studied at Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and began his pastoral experience in 1962 at Welborn, Texas. He has since served churches in Ennis, Ozona, Hamlin, Uvalde, Huntsville and Brownwood.

Revival worship services on Sunday will be titled "If My Assistant Dist. Atty. Rick Wilcox said the case is set on the docket for hearing in the court of Dist. Judge George Dowlen.

The case, filed against the county and the airport by Tulsa-Beachcraft Inc., seeks nearly $3000 in damages from the two defendants for alleged damages sustained by the plaintiff's aircraft during a scuffle between county deputies and two persons who later pleaded guilty to theft of an aircraft.

Music for the revival is under the direction of Douglas Duane Blakley, minister of music for the First Baptist Church of Brownwood. He has degrees from Eastern New Mexico University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. In addition to his church music ministry, which began in 1962, Mr. Blakley has directed choirs at East Texas Baptist College, Beaumont Inter-Faith Choral Society and was soloist and assistant choral director for the Beaumont Civic

An amended answer filed recently by Attorney Oscar Fields on behalf of Tradewinds Airport contends the airport personnel were following orders of police during the incident and that it would be against public policy for them to be found liable since such a finding would have the effect of discouraging cooperation with police.

Wilcox also filed an amended answer seeking dismissal of the suit on grounds that the plaintiffs failed to present their claim to county commissioners. He also pleads governmental immunity.

Wooden dominoes profitable hobby for retired citizen

A. G. Phillips made his first set of wooden dominoes when he was just a boy because the family didn't have the money to purchase a set.

"That first set was cut out of white pine and I burnt the spots in it with a red hot wire," recalled Phillips, age 79.

Phillips has been actively making wooden domino sets in his workshop at 2403 15th Avenue for the past three years. He retired from employment with the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum 11 years ago and has been making his home with his daughter, Linda Bourn, since the death of his wife.

In the past three years, Phillips has made well over a hundred sets of wooden dominoes. He has given numerous sets to friends and family and has sold over $500 worth of dominoes to various individuals across the country.

Phillips does most of the work on his domino sets but occasionally enlists the help of his three grandsons, ages 6-11, for some of the sanding.

He enlists the aid of a local cabinet-maker to split unusual woods into strips for the dominoes. Phillips, himself, cuts the individual dominoes, removes the sharp edges with a sander, drills the holes and paints the dots on each set.

Mr. Phillips presently has on order some 15-20 sets which have been requested in special woods. "Usually," he says "It takes a full day to make a set of dominoes and the case."

His wooden dominoes sell at $10 near and far and one of his current orders is for a set of double nine dominoes to be shipped a customer in Arkansas.

On his most recent summer vacation trip to California, Phillips brought back several varieties of wood for making dominoes. Included in the selection of woods were several, not available locally, including Big Leaf Maple, Osage Orange, Australian Wally Wood, English Walnut, Cherry and Pecan.

He also recently obtained a selection of oakwood and luan from a friend following the destruction of a courthouse at Sweetwater. The woods received by Phillips were from baseboards and other segments of the demolished structure.

One of Phillips' woods in his workshop is a myrtlewood which is known as the rarest of all woods and grows only in Oregon and the Holy Lands. The coloring of the wood is unique and varies from a satiny gray to multicolored grains of red, yellow and brown.

He reports that myrtlewood is a most expensive wood because the tree is from a family of spice trees and is very slow growing and the growth area is so limited. The wood is sometimes used for serving dishes for hot and cold foods such as steak plates, soup bowls and various serving pieces.

A. G. Phillips, 79, spends a good portion of his leisure hours in the art of making wooden domino sets in his workshop.

Social worker's job sees both sides of youth work

What is the difference between rearing a dozen youngsters from ages 7 to 19 and counseling youngsters on juvenile probation?

One is preventative care while the other is remedial, says a man who is involved in both areas.

Jan Potts, a WTSU senior in sociology, his wife, Barbara, and their son, Kevin, 7, live as house parents at High Plains Children's Home.

Mrs. Potts is expecting their second child soon.

As a house parent, Potts explains that he deals with his children's immediate problems while as a juvenile probation officer, he must deal with a youngster after the problem exists.

Potts is majoring in social work and is interning in the probation office this semester.

He and his family began as house parents about two years ago. They became friends with a couple who were house parents there and started by filling in on vacations or weekends their friends had to be away.

Rearing a dozen children is a big job, he says. The big, white house has nine bedrooms and five baths.

"Everything is oversized," he said.

Mrs. Potts does all the cooking, cleaning and clothes buying with help from her youngsters.

Potts said he definitely plans to work with juveniles after his graduation in December. But he is unsure what phase of work he will choose.

Environmental impact good

City completes last step for park

City commissioners approved an environmental assessment of the proposed plan to develop city land near the waste treatment plant after a brief public hearing Monday night.

No one spoke either for or against the project and the commissioners approved the plan routinely.

Mayor Manley Bryan explained to the handful of students attending the meeting that the park application for development of Southeast Park has been studied in detail by the commissioners for several months.

"I didn't want you to think we did this without any thought," he said.

The board approved the study of the environmental impact that concluded "In summation, the overall physical environmental impact will be minimal, but the non-physical increased recreation opportunities for the City of Canyon will be a major, positive impact."

Bryan said, "If by putting in trees and grass by the sewer plant, you're not improving the environment, I don't know what is."

The board also granted permission to city administrators to advertise for bids for a trash collection truck and containers to begin implementation of a containerized trash system for residents outside of Hunsley Hills.

The board agreed to postpone the next city commissioners meeting until Nov. 22 because of a Texas Municipal League meeting scheduled on the city's normal meeting date.

City attorney Elton Cox reported that the city has answered a lawsuit filed last week against the city and the state highway department. Partners of Canyon Creek apartments filed the suit asking for at least $75,000 in damages, contending that the improvements to US 60 have caused water damage to the building and grounds of the apartment complex.

Cox said the city has denied liability for the damage.

"The case has not been set for trial and goodness gracious, there's no telling when it will come to trial or if it will come to trial," he said.

Valdez' funeral rites this afternoon

Funeral services for 12-year-old Ricky Valdez will be conducted this afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Ann's Catholic Church.

The youth, who was a sixth grade student at Rex Reeves Elementary School, died Monday night at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, following a lengthy bout with leukemia. A community effort was mounted in Ricky's behalf last fall to raise funds for his medical expenses.

He was born in Canyon Aug. 5, 1964 and was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Jack Gist, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church, will officiate at the funeral rites today. Rev. Gist Returning to her alma mater, Mrs. Margaret Forrest, instructor in music at West Texas State University, will perform as a guest artist at Mary-Hardin Baylor College, in Belton.

She will sing the role of the mother in the Opera Workshop production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" by Gian Carlo Menotti Nov. 22 and 23.

"This will be kind of a sentimental trip for me because we did this same production eight years ago when we instituted the Opera Workshop," Mrs. Forrest said.

A 1970 graduate of Mary-Hardin Baylor College, Mrs. Forrest was selected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities" and was a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional music fraternity for women.

She received her Master of Arts degree in vocal performance from Stephen F. Austin University in Nacogdoches and is currently working on her doctorate in music education and vocal training at North Texas State University in Denton.

dedicated.

The tax valuations attributed to Canyon School District by the governor's study team are far higher than the valuations attributed to the district by the local tax office, which bases its figures on a 1966 revaluation update.

Thompson said the governor's team says the CISD has values at 100 per cent totalling $285,838,679. Local tax office records indicate a 100 percent value total of $186,231,430.

Valuation figures used by the legislature to figure the amount of local money which should go into education here two years ago showed a total valuation for the district of $231,999,576, or about 81 per cent of the governor's study report figures.

This means, in essence, that under the current system and without changes as proposed by the governor, and without a legislative mandate that a district not be taxed too severely, the local tax effort would be greater under the governor's figures than under the current legislative adopted figures.

Nevertheless, Thompson feels the figures are fair and reasonable and in line with what are probably true 100 per cent values in district property.

"Personally," he said, "I feel the values are reasonable. Looking at the total picture and if our values are based on 1966, I can say we're getting a pretty good shake."

Thompson joined with J. W. McMorris, a veteran reappraisal firm owner who performed a revaluation of property in CISD in 1966, in a Tuesday night suggestion to the Canyon School Board that the values not be challenged.

"I recommend you accept with a smile the print-out in each of these categories," McMorris said. "It is generally agreed we're going to have some legislation. I strongly recommend you don't protest this thing in general."

The governor's team report indicates the Canyon district has .0012010673 per cent of the state's total wealth.

In breaking down the 100 per cent valuation figure for property in the district, the team reported CISD has real residential single-family property 100 per cent values of $67 million. This is well above the 100 per cent value given such property on the tax rolls of $47 million.

Real residential multi-family property has been allotted a 100

On WTSU campus

UIL conference this weekend

A University Interscholastic League conference will be held at West Texas State University beginning at 9 a.m. Nov. 13 in the Activities Center and the Fine Arts Building.

All students interested in participating will register the day of the conference.

The conference is sponsored by the PESO Education Service Center, Region XVI, and will feature sessions in ready writing, speech, number sense, slide rule, journalism, a science contest, one-act plays, story-telling, picture memory and spelling.

Two workshops in ready writing will be held, the first beginning at 9 a.m. in Room 216 of the Activities Center. Chaired by Mrs. Mary Collins, WTSU associate professor of English, the ready writing session will discuss the general nature of the contest, including choice of topics and sample paragraphs. Consultant for the workshop is Dr. Geneva Pilgrim, state consultant in ready writing for UIL.

The second ready writing workshop begins at 10:30 a.m., to be chaired by Dr. Larry Cook, WTSU associate professor of English, with Dr. Pilgrim as consultant. Students will read and analyze three high ranking papers from past state meets and present critiques on the papers.

Students interested in UIL speech contests will receive a welcome from Dr. Ray Ewing, chairman of the WTSU Department of Speech and Theatre in Room 202E of the AC. A workshop in informative speaking will be chaired by Robert Boyd, assistant professor of speech. Poetry interpretation and prose reading will be chaired by Dr. Zell SoRelle, professor of speech.

A demonstration debate and analysis will round out the speech workshops. Two schools will debate on 'That a Comprehensive Program of Penal Reform Should be Adopted in the United States.' Amarillo High School debate team, under the direction of James Baughman will present the affirmative side, while Muleshoe High School, with Kerry Moore, will present the negative debate. Chairperson of the debate team will be Guy Yates, WTSU assistant professor of speech and director of forensics.

Number sense workshops will be chaired by David Patterson, assistant professor of mathematics with Mrs. Genelle Beck, state number sense director, UIL, as consultant. Discussion will be on competing in number sense, coaching and discussion of the mathematics contest in Room 206 of the AC.

David Lasher, assistant professor of mathematics, will chair the slide rule conference also in Room 206. Jack Lenhart, state director for UIL, will act as consultant. The purpose and development of the slide rule program will be discussed.

Journalism workshops will begin with a welcome by Bill Lee, associate professor of journalism, head of department and director of publications. Feature stories will be discussed by Carroll Wilson of the "Canyon News." Newswriting session will be headed by Dr. Max Haddick,

Grain Sorghum planted in wheat stubble with Minimum Tillage method. A special planter is used to place the seed through the wheat stubble and herbicide is used to control weeds and volunteer wheat.

Minimum tillage saves fuel on farms

With fuel costs rising every day, many area farmers are turning to minimum tillage as a way to hold down expenses according to Bill Casteel, district conservationist with the SCS.

Minimum tillage is a system of farming in which cultivation is limited to only the operations necessary to produce a crop. It uses herbicides instead of mechanical methods to control competition. Minimum tillage can reduce the number of trips across a field from 6 to 20 to one or two per crop. By eliminating 3 support shown for the national Ford-Dole ticket by county Republicans.

"That's more of a coincidence," she said.

In Canyon's Precinct 5, Simpson carried by 659 to 257 over Holt while Mrs. Bruse carried by a slim 487-467 vote over Burks.

In Precinct 6, Simpson polled 1106 votes to 469 for Holt and Mrs. Bruse polled 908 votes while Burks had 707.

Precinct 7 voters gave Simpson 454 votes to 258 for Holt and 422 votes to Mrs. Bruse. Burks received 317 votes in that precinct.

In Precinct 23, Simpson received 419 votes to 229 for Holt and Mrs. Bruse tallied 415 votes to 254 for Burks.

The county's voters gave their approval by a good margin to two Texas Constitutional amendments on the ballot Tuesday.

The first amendment, to increase $400 million for water bonds, passed here by an 11,327 to 8,066 vote margin.

The second amendment, to increase by $100 million the bonds available for water facilities improvements, passed by 12,190 to 7,070.

program in general and Mayfield in specific, passed by a wide majority of the voters present.

Several critics of the Vise motion urged that postponement would be appropriate since the Buffaloes are just past mid-season in their fall football schedule.

Others contended the alumni group has no right to interfere in the administration of the university.

Mayfield has been the focus of controversy throughout this season as his Buffaloes have eked out only two wins.

Area media have blasted him for this record and he has also drawn strong support from some.

Ex-lettermen of the university, meeting following the alumni group, were vocally critical of the university's administration, defending Mayfield.

Some called for the resignation of President Lloyd I. Watkins.

Mayfield was granted a five-year contract last year by the university's regents.

seat on the Supreme Court.

In the race for Railroad Commissioner, Randall County voters gave the nod to Jon Newton with 50.42 per cent of the vote. Walter Wendlandt took 40.07 per cent.

Two Canyon precincts going for Hightower over Price were Precincts 5 and 6. In Precinct 5, Hightower took nearly 60 per cent of the vote and in Precinct 6, he took nearly 55 per cent of the vote.

AN EQUALIZATION PROGRAM

for RANDALL COUNTY

After careful consideration and study, the Randall County Commissioners Court has employed the Southwestern Appraisal Company, Inc., to make a complete equalization study of the real estate within Randall County.

Why is this program necessary? In the past decade, rapid changes in property values have come about and these changes have brought about inequities in the tax structure. The proper way to correct this situation is to have all property appraised. When this is done, the current market value is determined and this will provide information that will allow the Commissioners Court to apply a percentage of this value for tax purposes, thus bringing about uniform and equal assessments for all property.

Soon our field men will be calling on you to ask permission to inspect your property, and we respectfully request your cooperation.

The Constitutional requirement that taxes shall be uniform and equal and based on current market value is of prime importance to everyone. Let's all work for equalization. We assure you that this program will lead to more equal sharing of the cost of your County's services.

Respectfully,

SOUTHWESTERN APPRAISAL CO., INC.

Travels with baby not dull

By JO FULKERSON
HOPE EVERYONE MADE a special effort to get out and vote on election day—it is so important to voice one's opinion. Well, everyone must think this election stuff is old hat about this time, so I will say no more. But I do hope it turned out to suit you.

I AM TELLING you! It is great to travel, to visit old friends and family, and to see new things and to iron out business problems, but it is also great to see the sign "Canyon, 17 miles" on the highway marker, and to turn off on the "McCormick Road" exit on your way HOME AGAIN.

Tom and I, together with our daughter Jeri Weber and her baby daughter, Janna, made the trip to Tucson this week, and we haven't decided yet which is the most comfortable way—travel at night so the baby will sleep (thereby keeping three adults up) or traveling by day so three adults can be more comfortable (thereby keeping one rambunctious baby up).

Who would think that one wee baby would wear out three full grown adults? Not only worn out, but frustrated at one point and entertained at another. To the little one the fascination of the litter sack in the floor is far greater than the fascination of the $1.98 toy designed to attract and hold a baby's attention for an unlimited time. The fact that the baby wasn't allowed down in the floor of the car was also misunderstood by the baby.

At any rate, traveling with a dear sweet child is never a dull experience, and I'd do it again (although not this week).

the different shades of leaves on the trees. We were so glad to get home, and via such a pretty route, too.

Got home in time to greet the trick or treaters. We had visits from one hunch-back, a variety of Snow Whites, Mickey Mouses, Fonzy's, a couple of fairy princesses, and lots of little bitty ghosts and etc.

We got to wave at a couple of parents who seemed to be enjoying the trick or treating too. That sort of thing is always fun.

UNDERSTAND THAT WE missed a beautiful snow while we were away. Shucks.

However, coming through the Hondo Valley in New Mexico, the snow made beautiful Christmas card-type scenes combined with and Canyon.

Next time I am in Tucson, I'll have to collect a quarter from Voyle who said the University of Texas would beat Tech last weekend!

FROM ALL REPORTS we have had here at Siesta, the homecoming festivities at WTSU must have been very nice—and the game especially fun. We have just lots of WTERS here at Siesta and proud we are that the weekend was fairly good weather for them.

WT's soccer club was due to play Tech last Sunday afternoon. The last game for the conference schedule. Again, please, let's don't discuss the score, I am a sore loser.

ROSCOE SHIPLEY'S

FATHER is still quite ill in Plainview, and Roscoe and Sharon and children spent the biggest part of the week with the family there. We do hope he is much better soon.

DEBBIE BROOKS SEEMS to be feeling her own young self again—completely recovered from surgery recently, and its a joy to see her out-leash-training her "huge" dog Muffin.

The dog must weigh at least one pound and is about as big as her name. Sure glad she is not a vicious dog. Muffin's a darling. Neighbors Ruby and George Cogburn love to walk her also.

RUBY AND GEORGE just got back from homecoming festivities in Weatherford. Just know they had lots of fun.

THERE'S A NEW husky-chow puppy at the Theo Fergusons on Siesta. Jean carried him by the office the other day because he's too small right now for a leash. He promises to be a very pretty dog.

FOR JUDY JOHNSON, whose mobile home living article asked the question "what can you do with the mobile home hitch?"—Don Cloward of Canyon tells me some people line them with boards, fill them full of dirt and plant things that will "hang over" and hide the hitch.

Sylvia Hollifield has a tub sitting on her hitch and full of plants for the same effect. Of course, these two ideas work best in spring and summer, but are

Gene Howe News

Belly dancing for moms

By FARRIS ANN MORRISON
FOR THE PAST eight weeks, thirteen proper, community involved wives and mothers have abandoned their matronly duties and identities to take a course in Danse Oriental, or Belly Dancing.

The course is almost over and I shall miss it. We have worked hard and learned some beautiful steps. Contrary to what you might think, the dance is often sedate with every movement controlled; the faster tempos are more playful, but again, always controlled and never vulgar.

Although the class is almost over, inside there'll always be a me in veils with jingling coins.

NATIONAL ELECTIONS PROVIDED Pack 130 with the inspiration to hold an election of its own. Candidates: Fonzie and Barbarino, a representative of the Sweatshogs Party.

After various campaign promises, the Pack favored the Fonz, who promised three months of school and longer recesses, more music and free pop-sicles. Who could resist? If only it were that simple!

GHOSTS AND GOBLINS were rampant last Friday at Gene Howe. Many rooms were decorated with all sorts of spooky things hanging from the ceiling:

black cats, paper plate jack-o-lanterns, ghosts, with orange and black paper chains.

Mrs. Woodward and Mrs. Langen had a witch pinata. Mrs. Trew had her class make Tootsie Pop witches complete with marshmallow faces, black hats and skirts.

Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Shoemaker's classes all made papier mache masks.

Mrs. Tillinghast's group used straws to make skeletons on black paper. They also made their own masks to wear for the party.

There were carved pumpkins, pumpkin seed roasts, and Johnny Gordon made a "Great Pumpkin" cake (which quickly disappeared in the Teachers' Lounge).

We had witches roaming the halls passing out treats. Christy Horton visited the lower grades with her "slave," Sandra Gilmore. Both looked appropriately ghastly and did a terrific job.

Jeannie Rosenbaum, the Room Mother chairman, went above and beyond her duty. She remained on the job seeing that everything went smoothly, even though her daughter injured her foot on the trampoline. All in all, it was a very successful Halloween.

GARY BEASLEY CERTAINLY deserves a mention. Before school was out, on the coldest day last week, he graciously changed a flat for Mary Davee. I think I would have called the nearest service station and stayed inside!

THERE HAS BEEN a discussion as to whether it should be "chile" or "chili." I have resolved the conflict in my own mind: "chiles" are the peppers and the dish is "chili." Hope this clears up the confusion that I have caused; I promise to be consistent in the future. Whatever the spelling, the results will be good.

AND Speaking of chili, wasn't that sneaky? Our tickets go on sale this week continuing through next Wednesday. The event itself will be from 5-8 p.m. Friday, Nov.

12. Prices will be $1.50, with preschoolers paying $.75 at the door. The PTA will award prizes to the top three salesmen, $5 for first, $3 for second, and $2 for third.

The top rooms in Kindergarten through third, fourth through sixth will get a sundae party. You'll only have to read this one more week. That gives you one more week to invite some extra people!

GAYLE AND CHINK Betty just returned from Hawaii. Chink earned the trip through salesmanship. They were gone about a week, suffered from jet lag, and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Honolulu was beautiful, clean, and expensive.

Gayle paid $2.08 for a hamburger, french fries, and a coke; she also saw coffee selling for $4.79 a pound. On the other hand, there were orchids everywhere: iniced tea, on dinner plates, even on her pillow at night.

Besides seeing Pearl Harbor, Diamond Head, Punchbowl National Cemetery, and touring Honolulu, the Bettys rented a van and drove around the island of Oahu.

Chink went deep sea fishing, but Gayle only spent about an hour on the beach—too much to do! The people were friendly, the vegetation lush and beautiful, but it was nice to get home.

LYMAN AND JUDY Stubblefield spent two weeks in Northern California at the American Dairy Goat Association convention held in Santa Rosa. Out of all the people from Canada, the United States, and Mexico, Lyman was elected president. Judy told me of a Spotlight sale, and I had no idea that goats were so valuable.

The top seller was a Toggenburg doe which brought $5,700! The second place was a $4,300 Nubian goat. These are of course dairy goats and are used for breeding and showing.

Besides the convention activities, they toured a winery in Sonoma County. What a shock to be in Phoenix, sunny, 76, and then come home to our snow.

I HOPE YOU all have a nice, calm, quiet week. I know I won't, but then who really wants to stay home and clean house? Busy is better. See you next week.

Art from throw-away objects has been the subject of a recent film and project by sixth grade students of Rex Reeves Elementary School. Among those creating the unusual in Mrs. Priddy's class were from left, Nick D'Uva, Amy Ford, Jeanette Spencer and Tammie Sloan.

AAUW dessert, and workshop meet Saturday

"Young People In Trouble" will be the subject of Belinda Pillow, administrator and resource developer for Institutional Child Care, as she addresses the local chapter of the American Association of University Women Saturday afternoon.

The AAUW chapter will meet at 2 p.m. in the home of Dr. Ruth Lowes, 1506 Creekmore, for a dessert session. Co-hostesses include Louise Baker, Audrey Sanders and Dorothy Smith.

Preceding the regular local meeting, the AAUW members will be participating in a district workshop at the First Christian Church of Amarillo. The workshop will begin with registration at 9 a.m. and conclude with a luncheon at 12:30 after which the local members will return for their regular monthly meeting here.

Umbarger news

Sausage festival time is near

By REBA RAE
GREETINGS, FROM UMBARGER. With our sausage Festival only 10 days away, things are beginning to hum around Umbarger.

Along with our meal, we will have a Country Store with home made goodies and a bazaar with hand made items.

The bazaar will raffle a Bicentennial quilt and an afghan. There will also be another raffle with a total of 15 prizes, as of now. The first prize will be $200 cash; the second prize will be one half of a processed beef; the third prize will be one quarter of a processed beef. There will also be a twenty-five pound bag of German sausage and a ten pound bag of German sausage on the raffle.

We will have a soda pop and ice cream stand, and a fish pond for the little people.

So, everyone, we'll be looking for you on the 14th.

TURNED last Sunday, from Houston. She attended a convention of The Texas Association for Children with learning disabilities. The convention was held on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Sadie went with several other teachers and when they got to Amarillo to board their plane, it had not been able to land because of the snow. The airport officials told them they could drive to Lubbock and board another plane, as it was clear there. So, they went to Lubbock and Sadie said the snow was so thick at times, that they almost turned back.

When they did get to the Lubbock airport, they were told that their plane was on the ground in Amarillo and would be in Lubbock in an hour. Such is the Panhandle weather.

Sadie attended eight sessions at the convention and enjoyed them very much. Saturday evening, Steve Brandt came from College Station, where he attends school, and took Sadie back to his apartment, where she visited until time to come home on Sunday.

VINCENT AND EVELYN Meyer attended the Golden Anniversary Mass, held last Sunday at the Civic Center. It was in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Amarillo Diocese.

Evelyn said the auditorium was filled to overflowing and that the Mass was beautiful and impressive.

WE HAVE A new little grandson, Andrew Mark Raef. He arrived at the Bitburg Air Force Base Hospital on Oct. 26th.

His parents are Andy and Edith Raef and he has two sisters, Nancy and Stefanie. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Vitis Simmer, of Bitburg, Germany. Our congratulations to Andy, Edith and the Simmers.

THE 3RD AND 4th grade C.C.D. class had charge of the Liturgy on All Saints Day, last Monday evening.

The children carried posters, reminding us that we can all be Saints, and each child asked for a special favor in the Prayers of the Faithful. Mrs. Ray Gerber and Mrs. Carroll Adams teach the class.

CALL ME WITH your news. Reba.

SADIE BRANDT RE-

A harvest table cloth which will be given away during the Arts Americana festival November 13-14 at the Activities Center of West Texas State University is being displayed by Mrs. Glenn Dowlen. Tickets for the drawing are available from Canyon Rainbow Girls and Eastern Star members at $1. The drawing will be at 3 p.m. on Nov. 14 during the crafts sale.

Arts Americana bazaar planned

Twenty two booths have been reserved for the Arts Americana bazaar to be held Nov. 13-14 at the ballroom of the Activities Center of West Texas State University.

Arrangements for the holiday craft sale are being handled through the Heritage Woman's Club and other individuals and organizations desiring to have a booth should contact Marion Marrs, 355-3748, or Joanna Flack, 655-3438, this week.

The craft sale will be open Nov. 13 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on

Funeral today for Mrs. Morris

Services for Mrs. Margaret A. Morris of Amarillo will be held today at 3 p.m. at Schooler-Gordon Colonial Chapel. Burial will be in Llano Cemetery.

Mrs. Morris, 68, died Monday. She was born in Yankton, S.D. and moved to Amarillo 15 years ago from Jal, N.M. She was a member of Washington Avenue Christian Church and the Jal Rebekah Lodge.

She is survived by her husband, Oral "Hap" Morris; a daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Beltz of Canyon; a son, Jay L. Morris of Houston.

The family will be at 1010 4th Avenue in Canyon.

Nunleys have second child

Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Nunley announce the Nov. 2 birth of a son, Patrick Karl, who weighed 8 pounds, 1 ounce at birth in New Orleans, La.

The father is employed with Gulf Oil Company and the family includes a 15 month-old daughter, Michelle.

Stolen safe is recovered

A safe taken from Carl's Garage, 2300 block of 9th Avenue Tuesday night, was found Wednesday morning blown open and the contents scattered on a country road southeast of town.

The safe was discovered to be missing at 2:20 a.m. when police sergeant Jack McGee, while patrolling, noticed a window broken and found a door open.

An estimated $60 was in the safe when it was taken. Police Wednesday were continuing the investigation.

City police are also investigating the theft of jewelry from the junior high girls locker room Tuesday evening.

According to the report, junior high students practicing basketball returned to the dressing room about 6 p.m. and discovered rings, earrings, and gold-rimmed glasses, valued at $300, gone.

A Canyon man told police his German Shepherd pup was poisoned Monday.

Robert Lee, of 1205-C 7th Avenue said he returned home about 6 p.m. after a three hour absence to find the 5-month-old dog dead on the back porch. A piece of meat suspected of containing rat poison was in the dog's food dish, Lee told police. The food had not been there when he left home, the man said.

Lee placed a monetary value on the dead animal at $50.

Police are also investigating the theft of a CB radio and 8-track tapes from a vehicle Sunday night.

Danny Shelton told police the stolen equipment was valued at $160.

Several wrecks involving no injuries and minor damage occurred over the week-end.

A rear-end collision Saturday on 5th Avenue at 18th Street damaged vehicles driven by Wynema Robbin Brotherton and Susan Annette McDaniel.

Canyon High students Royal Brantley and Tracy Lee Richie backed their autos into each other while leaving parking spaces on the CHS parking lot Friday. There was minor damage.

Diane Tarbet was cited for unsafe lane change after she struck an auto driven by Calvin C. Stephens Saturday. The two vehicles were traveling east on 4th Avenue when the Tarbet vehicle changed lanes and collided with the other car, police said.

Neal Edward Thrasher and Stephen James George were involved in a collision Saturday afternoon. Police said that George started to turn right on 15th Street at 2nd Ave. and then changed his mind, turning instead left and striking the other auto.

George was charged with turning without safety.

Election shows county still GOP

Tuesday's balloting in Randall County was not exactly a replay of the general election of four years ago, but it did indicate Republicans can continue to consider the county a GOP stronghold.

Republicans won by overwhelming margins in 1972's Presidential election here, while Democrats made some inroads during the Tuesday election.

Four years ago, the Nixon-Agnew ticket compiled a whopping percentage of the county vote with 18,557 ballots compared to only 3470 for the McGovern-Shriver ticket.

Incumbent John Tower polled 60 percent of the vote in that election, while Tuesday Democrat incumbent Lloyd Bentsen just out-

Demons apologize to CHS

Dumas school officials have issued a formal apology to Canyon officials over the behavior of their coach and football team during last Friday's Eagle-Demon game.

Canyon Supt. Sam Thompson said he received telephone calls Tuesday from the Dumas superintendent, assistant superintendent and high school principal apologizing for the behavior of Demon Coach Jack Moss.

"As far as I'm concerned it's over," Thompson said of the affair. Thompson said Canyon officials had not solicited the apology.

Moss rushed onto the field to berate game officials with less than a minute to play in Friday night's game. His team was penalized a total of 30 yards for his outburst.

But when the game was ended, Demon players apparently led by Moss launched an attack on the Canyon team, most of which was already headed toward the dressing rooms.

The Eagles won the game 20-14 and now hold a 6-3 season mark. They face an open date this week end but in another week play district foe Levelland to finish the season in Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

Irwin questions policy on hiring for schools

School board member Jean Irwin protested the other, male, members of the board's assumption Tuesday night that a basketball coach was more important than a guidance counselor.

She was reacting to a comment by Dr. Dudley Moore that the board wanted to interview all prospective administrative employees from the level of principal down to basketball coach.

He had earlier included counselors among the employees he said the board would want to interview, but deleted them in later discussions.

"Why do you think it's more important to approve the basketball coach than it is to choose the counselor who is going to advise a child and change his life?" she asked.

Tom Keeling, board president, replied that coaching positions are more likely to attract public comment.

The discussion took place as part of a board review of administrative policies.

Superintendent Dr. Sam Thompson has begun to update the mass of board policies set over the years to reflect later law and court decision changes. The board reviewed and adopted all but seven. They asked for the seven to be reworded, with most of the changes being minor.

Earlier in the meeting, the board approved the hiring of Sally Nester Brantley to head an innovative program to teach humanities to 30 selected high school seniors. She will be assisted by other teachers who take part in the program.

The board approved a salary for the remaining trimesters of the school year of $7,146.

Of this, $6,000 is being supplied as part of an $11,340 federal grant approved for the pilot program for this year only. Mrs. Brantley is to perform public relations duties in addition to her instruction, which accounts for the local funds added to her salary.

The new program will get underway at the high school next week, principal John Sommer estimated. The staff work is being completed now, he said.

Mrs. Ruth Holladay, former secondary curriculum director, organized the program and wrote the application for the federal grant, but left for a job with the regional education service before the program could be put in effect.

In other action, the board decided to have five Chinese elm trees removed from the south side of the administrative building.

Administrative assistant Willie McAlpin told the board the trees were obscuring signs placed there prohibiting parking in the area.

The trees could be trimmed and topped out, he said, but the plants were diseased anyway. The board agreed to have the trees removed. It will cost $50 for removal.

Ford picked by youths

Junior high students voted decisively for President Gerald Ford in a mock election held Tuesday, reflecting the way Randall County voters would take that day.

With 849 students voting, 541 students voted for Ford and 306 voted for Jimmy Carter. This gave Ford a 63 per cent to 36 per cent margin.

Eugene McCarthy received two votes. Although the American Party and Socialist Workers Party candidates were listed on the ballot, they received no votes.

Adult voters statewide gave the Texas electoral votes to Carter.

National advertising talked by commission

Randall County commissioners discussed but took no action Monday on a proposal from Amarillo leaders that the county help finance nation-wide advertising in Business Week magazine.

Commissioner Dee Griffin told commissioners of the request which came following a joint meeting of city and county and chamber of commerce officials in Amarillo recently.

The advertising would coincide with articles in the magazine about the Panhandle area and its potential for industrial and business development, he said.

No cost figures were given by Griffin.

Griffin noted the county's budget has no funds this year for such an enterprise.

In other business commissions met with representatives of Southwest Appraisal Co. of Austin to learn about the current revaluation of county property.

They also awarded a bid to Imperial Chevrolet of Canyon for a new automobile for the sheriff's department. The car will cost $4,624 plus the trade-in of a 1972 Chevrolet.

Heart monitor accounts reflecting slow growth

Heart monitor accounts reflect $2,214.74 deposited toward the $25,000 goal set in the Palo Duro Hospital Auxiliary's community project to purchase heart monitor equipment for the local hospital.

The account was reported on at a meeting of hospital auxiliary members Monday morning. The present total reflects $1,200 raised by the auxiliary on the sale of tickets for a painting donated by local artist Carl Smith and over $1,600 from memorial gifts and donations to the project.

Residents and local organizations may aid the Hospital Auxiliary in raising the funds and can obtain further information from either Mrs. Harold Dillehay, auxiliary president, or Mrs. Joann McBroom. Accounts are open for donations at both city banks.

At Monday's meeting, the auxiliary added as a new volunteer member Leatha Fuller.

The policy begun last year to exempt high school students from quarter exams for near-perfect attendance is being continued again this year.

"We're continuing the policy because it proved very effective," said CHS principal John Sommer. "Our attendance percentage did go up quite a bit."

Sommer said, however, that the policy still remained to be tested over a period of time.

"Whether with exemption or not, our attendance falls off," he said, is the question still to be answered.

Mail Yule deadline nearing

If you were planning to send a Christmas package or card by surface mail or space available to a member of the U.S. military stationed in Ethiopia, Iran, Israel, Saudi Arabia or Turkey, you're too late.

The postal service recommends mailing no later than Nov. 1 for delivery by Christmas.

But, if you were going to go airmail, you have until Nov. 8 for parcels, Nov. 30 for letters and Dec. 2 for Christmas cards.

Ever hopeful, the postal service has announced its annual mail

These pumpkins didn't wait around for the Great Pumpkin to call. They were handmade by first graders Kirk Moore, Michael Ray, Michael Dolle and Cameron Hrehor.

'The Director: Hoover'

From time to time the Canyon Sunday News will print reviews of new books available in the Canyon Public Library.

Reviews are being written by local readers as a project of the Canyon Friends of the Library.

The review today is by Frank Jones, an English teacher in Hereford before his recent retirement.

The Director: An Oral Biography of J. Edgar Hoover, by Ovid Demaris, 405 pages. New York: Harper's Magazine Press, 1975.

J. Edgar Hoover went into the Defense Department in 1917 at the age of 22 and stayed for 55 years, raising it from G-man days to the respectable Federal Bureau of Investigation. He became the director with the understanding that things would be done his way or not at all. According to this author, Hoover wielded more power longer than any other man in American history.

J. Edgar was born in Washington, D.C. After growing up, he had to take care of his mother. Not much free time, never married, later too busy. He bought his mother a canary which she called Jail Bird since it came from the Birdman of Alcatraz.

Later he cared for one of his nieces until she died. He didn't care much for women; debated against women's suffrage. He observed a strict personal life; did not have much time for society; was tied to his job. He was the F. B. I. His zeal made him somewhat autocratic, a little Napoleon. Sullivan, a fellow worker, said, "If he liked you, you could do no wrong; if he didn't, you could do no right."

Probably the high point in his career was the trapping of John Dillinger and the cleaning up of the criminal scene, ridding it of Pretty Boy Floyd, Machine Gun Kelly, Baby Face Nelson, Ma Baker's clan and the like.

The low point was probably during and preceding the time of the great wiretapping scandals. In the efforts of the agencies to weed out the active communists and other subversives, they all seem to have gone overboard in efforts to search out security leaks by bugging the offices of each other and in the wire tapping of phones. A third of the book deals with reshaping the Watergate affair. As was said often of England and certainly of us during this time, we somehow manage to muddle through.

Finally, Hoover said of himself, "You are honored by your friends and distinguished by your enemies. I have been very distinguished."

Five named to choir

Altos Robin Cooper and Lisa White were chosen from the ninth grade. Eighth grader Kelli Campbell and seventh grader April Gibson were also selected as altos.

They will perform this Saturday.

WTSU changes in presentation

"W.T.S.U. Perspective," a multi-media presentation presenting an updated look at the major academic programs available at West Texas State University, is now available to area civic organizations.

The 17-minute slide show outlines major fields of study available in the University's six academic areas. The program supplements and updates the current information film about the University, according to Keith Winter, the University's director of development.

Clubs and civic groups interested in having the slide show should contact the University News Service at West Texas State.

8th grade students, Eva Dee Friddy and Hilburn Craven; and 7th grade students, Teresa Polvadore and Louis Byers.

THE WOMEN'S STUDY Club toured the museum in Canyon this week. The Educational Director of the museum took them through the Indian section.

Mrs. Fay Moudy was the program chairman for the day. The program was "Americanism." Mrs. Bobby Odom and Mrs. George Tiley were the hostesses. Mrs. Eugene Sims served because of the illness of Mrs. Tiley. They packed sack lunches which contained reminders to vote.

The Women's Study Club's last meeting was in the home of Mrs. Simon Elliott. Mrs. Clovis Vernon, the fine arts chairman, was responsible for the program.

Mrs. Eddie Womack of the Happy Artists' Guild presented an arts and crafts program. She demonstrated the making of corn shuck dolls from patchwork material and corn shucks, and the making of Christmas wreaths.

WMU MEMBERS AND 11-year-old guests who attended the High Plains Baptist Assembly Camp on Saturday were Mrs. Hobart McManigal and Angelique Henry, Mrs. Clayton Devin and Molly Parker, Mrs. Bud Selvidge and Tisha Selvidge, Mrs. Luther Hollabaugh and Kim Foster; Mrs. Bertie Culp and Kaye Stubblefield, and Mrs. Bill Penn and Shelley Peterson.

They played games and ate lunch prepared by the WMU women. Mildred and Molly won a first in one contest and Anna Mae and Angelique won a second in the same contest.

Jeanne Johnson gave her G.A.'s a Halloween party on Saturday afternoon. Present were Angelique Henry, Kaye Lynn Stubblefield, Tisha Selvidge, Shelley Peterson, Kim Foster, Molly Parker, Vicki Todd, Cindy Ferguson, Patti Peterson, Shawna Harvey, Shauna Hampton, and Mandi Shipman.

The group played games and bobbed for apples.

Refreshments were cookies and kool aid. Jeanne mixed four colors of icing (orange, brown, yellow and green) and let the girls pick out a pattern and ice and decorate their own cookies.

HAPPY JAYCEES OPENED up their usual spook house on Saturday evening. From all reports, it was more scary than ever. The youngsters really got their "money's worth."

Happy Jaycee-Ettes held their Halloween party for their families on Sunday evening in the Happy Jaycee Hall.

Susan Rahlfs and Susanne Sims directed the children's games. They held a balloon race, popcorn ball race and a bean bag toss into a plastic pumpkin.

Costume judging is a highlight of the party. Cory McCarty, dressed as a clown, won the funniest costume prize. Rusty Combs won the most original. Lloyd Rahlfs, dressed as dracula (teeth and all), won the scariest prize.

Fathers traditionally participate in a pumpkin carving contest. This year's winners were Gene Shipman, Norman Freeman, Dean Bryan and Ronnie Johnson. The pumpkin was given a bust-type effect by being placed on an inverted bowl and given boxing gloves holding an American flag. He was complete with red yarn hair, "tums" eyes, paper cup ears, a print-work cap and a cigar.

Refreshments of orange Halloween punch, pumpkin faced cookies, and caramel apples were served from a table covered with a white cloth and trimmed with black cats. Matching black cat napkins added to the decorations.

All or part of these families were present: Vincent Venhaus, Ronnie Johnsons, James Stocketts, Tom Henrys, Gene Shipmans, Dean Bryans, George Tiley, Lloyd Rahlfs, Neal McCarty, Norman Freemans, Pat Sims, Charles Tates, Lloyd Venhaus, Charley Combs, Randy Johnson, Ricky McPherson, Ronnie Jackson, and Mike Watson.

MISSIONS AWARENESS DAY is scheduled for Nov. 15 at the Paramount Baptist Church in Amarillo. There will be three sessions — morning, afternoon, and evening. Foreign missionaries will be present for the day.

BILT RITE FARMS has rescheduled their barrow sale for Monday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m., at the D. L. Allison farm just three miles north and a quarter mile east of Happy.

Around 150 to 200 barrows and some gilts will be offered. The Tackitts invite you to come. Happy Booster club will be selling sandwiches and fried pies.

THE HAPPY COWBELLE Installation Banquet will be Wednesday, Nov. 10, at 11:30 a.m. at the Railroad Crossing in Canyon.

Have a good day!

Miss FTA from Canyon

Katy McCarley was elected Miss FTA and district historian at the District 16 convention of Future Teachers of America convention Tuesday at WTSU.

The Canyon High student will receive a $100 scholarship. Raymond Roberts, also from CHS, was selected alternate Mr. FTA.

Lissa Foster, of Happy, was elected district recording secretary.

The Canyon chapter of FTA entertained the executive board before the convention at the Railroad Crossing and the high school.

Work to start on cablevision

Construction of the cablevision tower is expected to begin here within the week, the holder to the Canyon franchise said Tuesday.

T. D. Austin of Amarillo said he has purchased a house on Third Avenue that has been converted to office space. The tower will be built there.

He expects to open the office in the next two weeks for subscriptions to the cable television service. The equipment should be installed within three months, he said.

Further information can be obtained by calling 655-2115 beginning Monday.

Howell wins rodeo title

Ronnie Howell was named All Around Cowboy for the Tri-State High School Rodeo meet held in Plainview during the weekend. Howell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Howell of Canyon, is a senior at Canyon High School. He is a member of the Happy High School Rodeo Club. In the competition at Plainview, Howell placed second in calf roping, was fourth in ribbon roping and placed third in team roping with his partner, Greg Cartile of Canyon. The Happy Rodeo Club took the first place team trophy. Howell, who has been involved in rodeo events for three years, received a saddle for the all-around prize and several engraved silver buckles in the individual events at the rodeo.

Volley team on the road

The West Texas State women's volleyball team will travel to the Texas-Arlington Tournament this weekend as a final preparation for the state Texas Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (TIAIW) tournament which will be held in Canyon Nov. 12-13. The Buffs stand 16-18-1 after finishing in second place at the TIAIW zone tournament last weekend in Abilene. WT defeated Sul Ross, Hardin-Simmons, Abilene Christian, and Angelo State before dropping to Texas Tech in the finals. "The Texas-Arlington tournament will be very similar to the state tournament," said Buff Coach Alma Ramsey. "A lot of the same teams will be there. From here on out, we'll be working on all facets of the game," Ramsey continued. "We really need to play well as a team if we are to do good, and we'll have to play super defense."

German sausage and 'kraut for dinner

Sauerkraut from original German recipes is aging in crocks at the Umbarger Pariah Hall in preparation for the 24th annual community festival at Umbarger.

The traditional dinner of sauerkraut and sausage will be served on Nov. 14 at the Umbarger Pariah Hall with the public invited to join the community in the annual celebration. Next Thursday, Umbarger residents will be preparing 3,330 pounds of sausage for the annual feast under the guidance of Sylvester Batenhorst, sausage committee chairman.

Mrs. R. D. Friemel and Mrs. Carl Friebel, sauerkraut chairmen, have been watching the fermentation of the sauerkraut since the fresh cabbage was placed in crocks several weeks back.

Other work has been going on to prepare for the annual festival for the past several months. Overall chairman for the festival this year is Joe Grotgut with Ed Wieck as co-chairman. Leonard Batenhorst is publicity chairman.

Several months of work have gone into the preparation of gift items which will be sold through the Bazaar where Mrs. Louie Raef is chairman.

Mrs. Max Hoffman will be in charge of the Country Store which will be offering a variety of homebaked breads and desserts along with take-home portions of sauerkraut and sausage for sale.

Tickets for the annual German Sausage Festival may be purchased between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Nov. 14 at the bazaar in progress. Tickets will be $3.75 for adults, and $1.50 for children under 12 with pre-schoolers being served free.

Homemade breads, green beans, applesauce, tea, coffee, milk, chocolate milk and brownies will complement the sausage and sauerkraut. Head cooks for the dinner are Mrs. R. E. Friemel, Mrs. Elroy Arho, Mrs. Ed Grabber and Mrs. Marion Hicks.

After the dinner tables are cleared away, the day's activities will be wound up with a dance featuring music by Tiny Lynn's Band from 8:30 p.m. until midnight. Tickets for the dance will be available at the door.

The annual festival was begun in 1952 as a project for St. Mary's Catholic Church designed to raise improvement funds for the parish.

Randall County DA warns sellers of mobile homes to watch for fraud

Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod joined with other state prosecutors in a warning directed toward potential buyers and sellers of mobile homes concerning a state-wide swindle involving a fraudulent mobile home purchasing scheme.

While Sherrod said his office has received no complaints involving the scheme, he warned that with the number of mobile homes in Randall County the scheme could become a problem here.

The swindle, according to information from Attorney General John Hill, works like this:

The swindlers scan newspaper want ads to find individuals who are offering mobile homes for sale. They contact the seller, then one person goes to see the mobile home.

If the home is fairly new and in good condition, he offers to assume the monthly payments to the mortgage company or bank that financed the purchase for the original owner, or to make a monthly cash payment to the owner.

Reports indicate that the swindler may even use a "sob story" to get the mobile home owner to believe he has a legiti-mate reason to make a very quick purchase. In one case downstate, the swindler said his child had died and he and his wife wanted to leave their home and its memories as soon as possible.

The purchaser then talks the owner into accepting $50 to $500 in cash equity and signing an "assumption" or "transfer" agreement. Coupled with a manufacturer's statement of origin, which the swindler later prints up and takes to the county courthouse, this "assumption" or "transfer" agreement will allow the "purchaser" to get a certificate of title.

The purchaser may have the mobile home towed away the same day or a day later. His next step is to sell the mobile home quickly, in another part of the state at what seems to be a bargain price.

WT Kenyan runners vie for singles title

West Texas State's Joseph Kemei and John Chemarango should be in the running for the individual title, but Wichita State will be the odds-on favorite for the team title in the Missouri Valley Conference cross country championships Saturday morning in Peoria, Ill.

"We'll be very competitive," WT Coach Bob Kitchens promises. "We should be able to have two runners in the top five, and if we have two more in the top 20 and our fifth in the top 30 we could finish second."

Kemei, a junior from Eldoret, Kenya, owns the top five-mile time in the league this year, a 24:21 clocking, at a U.S. Track and Field Federation sectional meet in Portales, N.M., last month. He's been closely challenged all year by Chemarango, a freshman from Kitala, Kenya, whose best time is 25:01 over a tough course at Texas Tech.

Both men are quick starters, and that strategy should be evident quickly in Peoria. "We'll be going out hard and fast," Kitchens says. "We'll try to control the race because we think that is the way to win it."

Wichita State's balanced team is a strong pick to defend the title it won at Carbondale, Ill., last year. "They should be able to put five runners in the top 15," Kitchens explains, "and nobody else in the conference can do that."

The Buffs, though, should be in the battle for second place with Southern Illinois and Drake. SIU is led by Mike Sawyer, the MVC champ over 5,000 meters, who has run the distance in 24:31 this fall. Drake's best bet is Boyd Nansel, the defending individual champion.

Freshman Bert Torres (27:01) and Gabriel Boit (27:05) will also be counted on to aid the team effort. "As I said, if Bert and Gabriel can place in the top 20, and if Gary (Thomas) can run well, we should be right in there for second place," Kitchens said. Thomas, normally a quarter-miler for the Buff track team in the spring, has a best time of 28:14.

Returning tennis champs open Mo. Valley Conference season

West Texas State's tennis team, returning all six players from its 1976 Missouri Valley Conference championship, opens its 1976-77 season this weekend (Nov. 5-7) in the Oklahoma State University Fall Tournament.

Seniors Steve Johnson, Brett Hall and Jay Goss, juniors Todd Reed and Bobby Kleinecke, and sophomores Joe Dan McBeth and Doug Davis will be the WT team when it opens play Friday at 9:30 a.m. against MVC foe Tulsa.

The tournament should be one of the best in which the Buffs will compete this year with such teams as Louisiana State, Oklahoma City, and Arkansas entered. "But we can't look past Tulsa," WT Coach David Kent quickly warns. "Even though we beat them 8-1 in the conference meet this spring, it was a much tougher match with a couple of three-set wins for us and another match decided by two tie-breakers. They will be a stern test for us."

With the experience and quality that Kent returns, this could be a banner year for Buff tennis. West Texas State has won four straight Valley team titles, and the last two championships have been pretty much with the current team.

This year, however, Kent thinks he has the quality in the top three singles positions for a top twenty placing in the NCAA tournament next May in Athens, Ga. "We've always had the trademark of having quality people all through our lineup, and this depth won a lot of close matches in the past," Kent explains.

"This year, Johnson, Hall and Trotters have baby daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Trotter of 111 Aspen in Hereford announce the Oct. 26 birth of a daughter, Courtney Nichole, at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

The baby girl weighed 9 pounds and 3/4 ounce at birth and measured 20 1/2 inches in length. Her father is the manager for Plains Corn, Inc. in Hereford.

Reed all seem ready to really have strong years. We should finally have the strength on top to do well nationally," he adds.

Johnson enters his senior year with a 68-23 career record that includes MVC singles titles in 1974-75. Hall stands 70-20 for his three-years and won the No. 2 singles titles this spring, his second MVC title. Reed has a two-year record of 47-12, and nearly missed his second straight No. 3 Valley win last spring.

Davis, 25-10 last year as a freshman, will play the number four spot next week; Goss, whose career record is 73-21, will play number five; and junior Bobby Kleinecke (41-17) will play number six. Second-year man Joe Dan McBeth will fill in.

In doubles, Johnson and Hall should be one of the top teams in the nation again this year. They were the easy MVC winners in the number one position with their 24-3 season record. Rounding out the OSU entry will be Davis and Kleinecke in number two, and Reed and McBeth in number three.

"Probably the team to beat this year will be LSU," Kent says of the opening tournament. "Oklahoma City will also be very strong, as will Arkansas. As I said, though, we won't look past Tulsa."

Last year, the Buffs finished seventh in the meet with losses to LSU and OCU before a win over Tulsa.

The Oklahoma State meet will be the only collegiate meet of the fall for the Buffs, but they will compete in the Canyon Thanksgiving tournament in late November on the WTSU and Canyon city courts.

Lions set Buffs Day for this home game

Lions Clubs in the Texas Panhandle will observe "WTSU Buffaloes Appreciation Day" Saturday when the Buffs host Lamar University's Cardinals in Kimbrough Memorial Stadium, district governor Jimmie Pigman of Dalhart announced this week.

Lions of District 2-TI will be recognized in a special half-time ceremony during the game. "We will not be sitting in a group since many Lions have already purchased season tickets to the Buff games," Pigman said. "I have requested that all Lions do wear their Lions identification cap vest or hat."

West Texas State enters the game with a 2-5 record, but the Buffs are coming off an impressive 30-25 win over Southland Conference leader McNeese State. Dimmitt halfback Robert Mayberry was named the Missouri Valley Conference's offensive player of the week for his 147 rushing yards and three touchdowns.

WINGS sets rap sessions for suggestions of goals

A rap session on services for women at West Texas State University will be at noon today, in the WTSU Student Union Bldg. faculty lounge.

The session is being sponsored by WINGS (Women Involved in New Goals), a new organization on campus.

"We wanted to give women the opportunity to tell us what they would like WINGS to do for them," said WTSU Women's Advisor Enid Bates. "We need to know what direction we should go, and how we can better serve them."

All 1200 women on the West Texas State University who are 23 and older are automatically members of WINGS, which has no membership dues, according to Dr. Bates. The purpose of the organization is to provide a nurturing atmosphere for the non-traditional women students who are coping simultaneously with work, family and the challenge of returning to school.

WINGS has been sponsoring Brown Bag Luncheon seminars since Dec. 1975. Program topics have included "Job Opportunities," "Learn to Relax," "Legal Rights of Women," "Financial Investments and Programs" and "Potluck and Politics."

President for the organization is Mrs. Stella Sherwood, and Mrs. Mary Aguilar and Mrs. Linda Stone serve as vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

Rap session moderators will be the WINGS officers, Brenda Lawless and Kay Thomas.

Bufs see edge for Lamar game

West Texas State's football Buffaloes have an added psychological edge as they prepare for Saturday night's game with Lamar, the Buffs know they can win at this game.

The proof came last Saturday afternoon when WT upset McNeese State 30-25. "This was a critical game for us," head coach Gene Mayfield reflects. "We needed to win it very badly."

Now, the opponent will be Lamar's Cardinals, a team much in the same need of a win as the Buffs were last week. Game time in WTSU's Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium will be 7:30 Saturday night.

Lamar will come to the Panhandle with a 2-6 record, one that includes five straight losses. The last win, however, was over UT's Missouri Valley Conference brother, New Mexico State.

Since that time, the Cardinals have had their troubles with losses to Southern Illinois, Southwestern Louisiana, Louisiana Tech, Long Beach State, and last week to Arkansas State by a 31-0 count. New Coach Bob Frederick's team is averaging only 205.4 yards per game total offense while allowing 318.8.

"They have had some problems moving the football," Mayfield says, "but they do have a pretty salty defense. One of their tackles, (Donald) Davis, really gave us fits up here two years ago, and we know their middle linebacker (Lonnie McGowan) is a good player, too."

Chris Frederick, the son of the head coach, will direct the offense at quarterback. He's completed 39 of 81 passes for 423 yards, and his favorite receiver is little (5-7, 130) freshman split end Howard Robinson with 16 catches for 240 yards and two scores.

As for the Buffs, things are much brighter after the win over McNeese that broke a five-game losing streak itself. Halfback Robert Mayberry had the best game of his career in leading the win offensively, and end Darrel Blades gave the Buffs a chance for the win by forcing and recovering a fumble deep in McNeese territory with one minute to play.

Mayberry, who was named the Valley's offensive player of the week Monday, rushed for 147 yards and scored three touchdowns, one an 83-yard gallop for WT's first points late in the first period. "It came at a very critical time for us," says Mayfield. "We're down 12-0, and then all of a sudden Roberts breaks a counter play and we're back in the game."

Blades, who also had five tackles and five assists in addition to his biggest play, also drew Mayfield's praise. "It's really a tribute to Darrel that even though the game looks lost, of Darrel is still giving 100 percent effort," he adds.

Next week, the Buffs end their home schedule when they meet Northeast Louisiana in a 7:30 p.m. game. Then it will be on to New Mexico State (Nov. 20) and Tulsa (Nov. 27) to end the year with a pair of important Valley games.

Cagers click along in pre-season play

Like TWA, Buff basketball is right on schedule going into the third week of pre-season practices.

"Our progress has been steady with not too many surprises," Ron Ekker, West Texas State University's head coach, says. "Our players are really performing like I've expected them to: the younger players are having a little difficulty catching on to what we are trying to do, but the older players are doing an excellent job of coming back and running it."

Ekker and his staff are directing 13 players through the workout sessions. Included are three returning starters among seven lettermen — guards Maurice Checks and Melvin Jones, and forward Eugene Smith.

"Checks has been playing awfully well," Ekker says of his All-Missouri Valley Conference guard. "He's really playing better than when he left in the spring."

"His intensity is so tremendous. That part of his make-up has always been good, but he's even more intense this year. Altogether — his experience, skill and intensity — he's been playing extremely well in practice."

Eugene Smith, the 6-5 senior from Hobbs, N. M., fits in the same category. "Both are playing the same way: they are more experienced, their skills are good, and their intensity has been really strong," Ekker adds.

The third returning starter, 6-4 senior Melvin Jones, has missed most of the second week of practice with a sprained ankle.

West Texas State's main question mark entering the pre-season work concerned the play of junior college transfer Richard "Red" Addison. He's the man needed to replace All-Valley center Dallas Smith.

"He's doing the things we like," Ekker explains. "He's rebounding well, he's passing well, and he's scoring inside where we need scoring. He's learning and learning very quickly."

The Buffs will go on public view for the first time on Nov. 22 when they host the Brazilian National team in the Buffalo Fieldhouse on the Canyon campus. The regular season opens Nov. 27 against Panhandle State in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

WT women cagers rebuild for season

The West Texas State women's basketball team will open their 1976-77 season on Nov. 4 as the Buffs will travel to Levelland to face South Plains.

WTSU is at an almost completely rebuilding stage as the majority, including four starters, of last year's 26-14 team was graduated. But nevertheless, Coach Allene Stovall thinks that this year's team has a lot of potential.

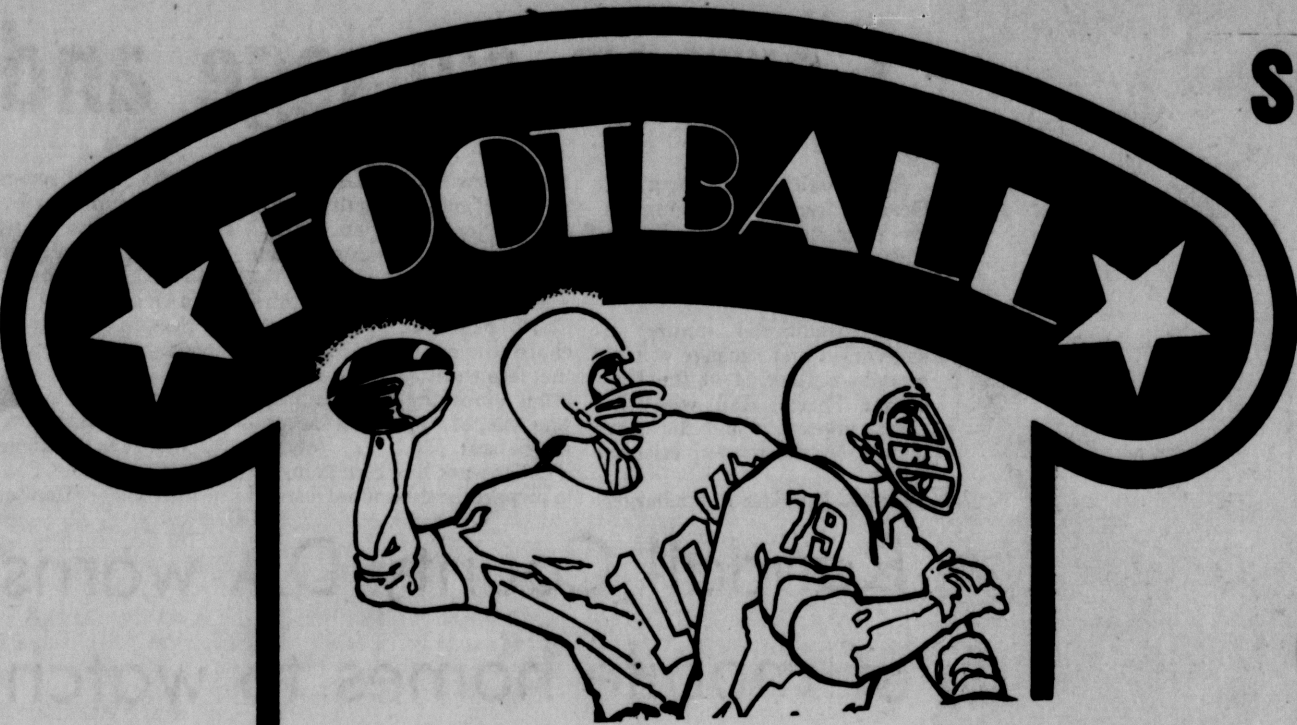

"We will have a much faster team this year than before," said Coach Stovall. "Just looking at them, they look a lot quicker than even last year's team."

"I feel that probably two of our biggest weaknesses will be aggression and team shooting. In order to win some ball games, they will have to become much more aggressive than they are now. About the team shooting, it would be very hard to find a team with the shooting abilities of last year's team."

Coming back from last year is Debbie Webb, who led the Buffs in point production with a 12.1 avg. per game, and Lynn Davis, who hit for 3.7 points per game, but is considered a strong defensive player.

"We've really been working hard, and it will take more hard work and desire if we are to win any ball games," said Davis. "I have mixed emotions about our first game, which is against South Plains, because my sister Louise is playing for them."

After the South Plains game, the Buffs will travel to Clarendon on Nov. 8 to face Clarendon Jr. College, and will meet South Plains on Nov. 11 in the WTSU home opener.
